Wednesday
Many are reluctant to embrace “Lament” because they think lament is expression of the defeated and the weak. But the Psalms are replete with words of lament. The people of faith are people who are fluent in lament. Usually, lament represents the cries of those who have loss something (people, courage, money, position, friends, sanity, etc.) Today, find a solitary place, where you will not be disturbed. Spend at least 30 minutes in solitude. While in your solitary place, read the following psalms: Psalm 6, 13, 44, and 88. On a piece of paper, list some the losses that you are dealing with. Ask God to meet you in your solitary place and sit with you as you grieve. Take a moment to express your heart to God. Be honest.

Thursday

- How does reading this Psalm in its entirety shape your understanding of Jesus’ fourth word from the cross?
- How is the Psalmist able to shift from crying out in despair to entrusting God to deliver him?
- Jesus’ words from the cross provide comfort for onlookers and encourages them to trust in God. For those experiencing “Godforsaken” places in their lives, how can you be a comfort or encouragement?

Friday

- In what areas of your life do you need the Lord’s strength?
- What does Jesus’ ordeal on the cross teach you about suffering for God’s purposes?
- Describe or list ways that you draw strength from the Lord.
- Pray a prayer of trust and confidence in the Lord. Ask God to help you in areas where trust is weak or waning.
